my dear, daughter. I was mustered into the Service of the State of Tennessee on the 22d July 1861 Camped at Hospital grounds near memphis was placed in charge of the battery, at the mouth of Wolf River 2/32s and 2/64th pound guns, on the 26th Sept was ordered into Camp at German town 18 miles from memphis on the M and C RR remained there until Nov 28th 1862 when by order of Genl Sidon I Pillow was ordered to Fort Pillow, 80 miles above memphis on the Mississippi River, we were stationed here until March 1st when the "Company" under Chg of 1st Lt R J Brooks was ordered to new madrid Missouri I was ordered to memphis in chg of 5 Wagons, with chs his I remained until march 3rd, took boat at memphis landed at Dyerstown, Tennessee, found the road obstructed at Pt Pleasant Mo, 9th Federal artillery, took the road on foot to Poland 10, thence by boat to new madrid, where I rejoined my Command we remained at new madrid, until the night of the 13th of march 1862 when we evacuated as we found after the fight of the 12th we could not hold the place as we were opposed by "32" Regts Infantry, 2 Regts of Engineers, 12" batteries of artillery, and Several Regts of Cavalry - a gun gatory. Some forty thousand Soldiers - our effective force was "8" Regts only about 2500 Men, being fit for duty

The enemy's occupation of Pt Pleasant below us made our position untenable - and we evacuated. I was in ch of the rear Picket - It was a terrible night, we got off safe - Only losing one man in the confusion. We were up to Island 10, on the Gunboat Ponchatrain, then took boat again encamped five miles below, then moved again till the 1st inst, Picketed for 5 miles, moved again to the Island and stood the fire of shot and shell for week - was relieved - the Glorious Boys of the Federals, passed during a stormy night and we were again marched - were kept - for two nights in the rain, without tents, or nothing to eat - and were notified on the 8th of April, that we were surrendered Prisoners of war, remained another night in the rain, then taken on the "Emma" to new Madrid - there to Cairo and then by rail to Columbus Ohio left there City, after an confinement of 10 days in Prison No. 3 - Camp Chase on the 24 of April 1862, for this Prison on Johnson's Island in Lake "Erie" where I am to day - this July 16th 1862.

I was transferred to C States Service, August 10, 1861

To My Dear little friend Lu La

Lu Lu I Know you will remember me when below my name you see Who played with you as well you Know
At a place they called Fort-Pillow,

And ah! do you remember my little friend
When we left you for Mobridie bind
When we left your to fight the Yessians
To drive them from our Country possessions

But Alas! alas! our little band
Was captured and Carried to a foreign Land Where in prison we were confined
For full five months! time! oh time!

But Lu Lu glad tidings greet us to day
That we are to be moved away
To our homes! where our friends we will meet
Where there will be joy and pleasure throughout the land

So now Lu Lu I bid you good day
For I must close this little lay
And may god protect you from every care
That you may live and never fear

Dear Lu Lu

Your father has requested me to write a few lines in your book with the names of his many friends. Your father and I are friends. We have seen hardships, have stood side by side in defending our glorious country.

When our independence is gained and when our "Confederacy" has taken her position among the nations of the Globe. Then I hope to see you at home with your father and mother (Lally) and may your father never have cause to grieve your mother and sweet little self as in this case, any more, is the wish of your friend.

Dear Lulu

Your father desiring that I should add my name in the list of his friends as a souvenir for you in after years permits me to express by the following quotation my interest for you.

"Can'st thou not know a naked, new born, child
Weeping thou sat'st, while all around thee smiled.
So live! that sinking in thy last long sleep
Thou may'st smile while all around thee weep"

John W Morgan

I've a lut-gifted with "a little fire,"
For you, dear Lu Lu, I would tune my lyre
And sing, in Scott's or Moore's lofty strain
Of scenes of death on Shiloh's bloody plain,
Where the cabin guard of a Sabbath's morn
Was startled by the battle's wild storm;
Where Southrons, fighting for their country and Hearthstones, fought the mercenary band:
Where many a hero found a bloody grave
And yielded up the life he truly gave
To check the workings, and to stay the tide
Of hatred Yankees, with its dreams of pride
That thought to subjugate our noble race,
Our happy land, the home of slavers - and thee
But, entre, mine is no lofty muse:
It plods along, nor soars beyond the views
Of common mortals - so in rhyming prose I'll simply tell you I was one of those
The "gobbled up", when fighting at the post - Lieutenant in the glorious "Twenty First" - Of Alabama's sons) have learned to feel How sad it is now they secure, beloved Mobile -
So safe in a foreign, hostile land
Far from the sorrowing, loving household band
Who wait my coming: may it not be long Ere I - and you, dear Lu Lu - hear the song -
Our country free, and cease each war's alarms -
And gladness come to this loved one's arms -

I address these Lu Lu from a colder clime
Than your own dear Southern land
To prison consigned, to remain a time
For daring to rally round Liberty's stand.

I write from a land where the pure holy fire
In the lamp of Freedom grows dim,
To beg a kind thought (as a friend of your sire)
May be spared from your thousands for him.

And, Lu Lu, I'll pray in return that the rays
Of our rising Southern sun
The brightest and warmest may meet thy gaze
And cheer your path in the years to come

Dear Lu Lu, your Papa today,
Tells me I must indite a lay,
The subject of this short narration,
To be my Name and Rank and Station,
So Pretty Lu Lu, here I go,
To tell you, almost all I know.
Start for my name; stop here's a blunder,
To find out that; you must look under,
Where tis written, in this way,
First Lieutenant, Co. F. A.
And if you'd know a little more,
Why place me, in the Artillery Corps.
Pray now dear Lu Lu, dont you laugh,
This truly is, my Autograph

Dear Lulu;

"Papa" has kindly invited me to put my "autograph and anything else" in this little book for you. I have promised him that I would. So here goes.— I was born in the county Tipperary. Ireland Dec^r 14^th 1835— imported to The United States March 7^th 1843— left the fangs of that government at St Louis Mo 14^th May 1861. for having whipped on the 11^th of the same "Old Pagan" (the biggest miller and union man of that city,) for having upheld the shameful conduct of the Dutch who massacred the citizens in the Camp Jackson affair. I could add several minor fights to the list of those in which I was engaged in our espoused cause of liberty, but do not think it necessary to refer to any except the four pitched battles of Carthage, Springfield, Belmont and Shiloh. At the battle last mentioned, "killed completely" (to say nothing of several bad hurts whose marks I bear from the former ones) was what they put on the muster rolls opposite my name. I was brought a corpse (to liberty) to this prison having been packed without ice, with several others-dead soldiers- like myself- in steamboat and car, and exposed along the whole route to the rude gaze and gaping stare of the union shriekers. I embarked in this, my military career, short as it has been, as a "private" under "the noblest Roman of them all." the gallant Sterling Price! and when "found dead" at Shiloh, it was my boast that in the "moral rank of our "Grand Army" I was next to that of my capturers. When the day of resurrection for "dead soldiers" arrives I trust that I may "rank" him- at any rate I know that I will get a "brevet" equal to his for "services and faithful performance of duties" as a prisoner, for carrying water, cucumbers" the federal sutler out of newspapers- keeping out of the range of our sentries guns, etc etc.

My eyes fill at the thought of all these dear Lulu, and oh! may this happy day of resurrection for prisoners soon come to you, "Papa" and his friend.

To Lu Lu on her birthday

'Tis just six years to-day, that gives to the theirs past. Six Summers, have flitted by and left their color in your fair and polished brow. Six winters with their frost and chill, have not disturbed one golden ringlet, that clusters o'er thy radiant face, and those clear blue eyes that shows the reflex of the innocent and purity within are as calm to day as they were on that day.
Six fitful years ago, when those my darling opened them in this busy, fretful, and unsatisfying world. God bless thee my daughter, and may thy future be as fair as thy mothers love has been sacrificing and devoted. So live, that her precepts and actions, will not be lost, and let their imitation, be the index to all thine deeds in the race of life. Let busy memory deal with volumes of her virtues and remember 'tis to her, you are to look for wisdom and instruction. Conceive that your Mothers fiat is deified, in your mothers love let your resolves, on this your birthday, be that you will be a good girl - So that you will make a true woman - the pattern of one of the best of wives

Your affectionate Mother and friend of mankind

La solitude agit sur l'âme humaine de façons diverses: d'hommes éminents elle fait parfois de grands hommes, d'esprits vulgaires, elle fait presque toujours des sots incurables. La société arrêtait l'essor des uns, protégeait la médiocrité des autres.
Loin de tout support et de tout ombrage, le rustique arbrisseau grandit, se nourrissant de sa sève et développant librement ses rameaux au souffle de la brise et aux rayons du soleil:
en butte à une contrée à la plante parasite, elle se dessèche, languit et meurt.

To Miss Lu Lu Barbier

Blessed child thou art, and blessed me life because thou art a child. for childhood's day is radiant with the unsullied light of joy unspeakable — while innocence, serene and pure as God's first, through every avenue pervades the soul. Unshadowed is the light of childhood's day by that of sterner, somber man-to whose tos linked in close embrace: lies as a placid bay lies smooth and sparkling 'neath a summers sun, — while near at hand the ocean, torn and lashed by fierce contending winds, in angry billows vents its rage and spleen.

Sweet innocent, thou knowest not the consolation of this thought to him thou calst thine earthly Father, and now the thought consoles his comrades too — that every child to them so closely knit as thou to him, lives on in peace and joy — unconcious of the storm that rages round, that desolates thy native land — its cities towns and villages enthralled in awful ruin — while shrieks of woe and wailing agony in hideous concert join the clang of war, I see thee now as twilight gathers o're thy native town, a mothers arm has drawn thee to her side and nearer yet she clasps thee to her bleeding heart burning thoughts of him 'twixt whom and her thou art the precious link — each other chase across the heated brain till falls the unbidden tear upon the childs unconscious head. Sleep on angelic innocence, may heavenly messengers their vigils keep around thy little couch, and guard thee in thy waking hours.

And when the child a maiden full has grown may God in heaven withdraw its smile from earth and death and sin that Father still preserve to tell her of the days when indignant frowned on man. Then mayst thou read — not of thy countries shame, and how she fell a victim to the oppressors sword — but how she struggled, bled and suffered on, till glory, liberty, and victory crowned her cause, and all her childrens heritage.

Thy Father's friend and hence thine own

Your father has desired me to make for you, a present of some kind, I do it with pleasure for I can appreciate the pride with which he is animated, as indeed we all do the present for you. I am collecting a few souvenirs for my daughter and can fully enter into his feelings.

To Lulu Barbeire

The isolated floweret in the desert is protected & nurtured by Him whose omnipotence is clothed in all that is good on earth— Faith, Hope & Charity. As this simple, unknown floweret is watched & nurtured, and as it grows into maturity, under the all-seeing Eye of Heaven, so you, dear Lula, a sweeter floweret, bearing the "human face divine", may, with hope ever look, in all your hours of doubt, or of trouble to— "Our Father"— place your confidence in Him, & let your future be governed by ~~his~~ His grand, undying precepts. A kind, loving mother, has been by His dispensation called away from you, & transplanted; we humbly trust to the presence of the "Great White Throne." Kind relatives & kind friends will watch your progress along the path of life, with a solicitude almost equal to that felt by your doting father. Accept this tribute in its true spirit & believe me to be a good friend of your father's.

Tally.

Methinks I see
The childish glee
With which your eyes these pages trace.
Where many a name
Unknown to fame
Will find a treasure resting place.

True patriots, all!
Some yet may fall
On fields of battle dark and gory,
Both good and pure
Your heart will sure
Award them then full meed of glory.

Strike with might and main
'Til the fair fields redden
With a gory rain rain
Smite them by the roadside Smite them in the wood.
By the lonely valley,
And the purpling flood.
'Neath the mystic starlight 'Neath the glare of day.
Harrass, sting, affright them.
Scatter them and slay
Beard who dare our chieftain
Bind him-if you can,
But "no worth!" the Hessian chief
Who meets him-man to man.

3

There is a kind purpose
Brooding in his breast
Born of solemn promise
And a deep unrest.
For our ruined homesteads,

'Tis no time for pleasure
Doff the silken vest
Up my men! and follow
Marion of the West!
Strike with him for freedom Strike with main and might 'Neath the noon-days splendor
'Neath the gloom of night
Strike by rock and roadside
Strike by wold and wood
By the shadowy valley
By the purpling flood.
On! when Morgan's war horse
Thunders in the van.
Good! who would not gladly die
Beside that gallant man!

Johnson's Island
Aug 11-1862

The Kentucky Partisan by a Tennessee lady

1.

Hath the wily "Swamp-Fox"
Come again to earth?
Hath the soul of Sumpter
Owned ye second birth?
From the western hill-slopes
Starts a hero form,
Stalwart & like the oak-tree
Fearless like the storm
His, an eye of lightning
His, a heart of steel
Flashing deadly vengeance
Thrilled with fiery zeal
Hound him down-ye minions
Seize him - if you can
But "woe worth!" the sterling Marion man
Who meets him man-to-man.

2.

Well done! gallant Marion!
For our ravaged lands
For our women outraged
By the dastard hand
For our thousand sorrows.
And our untold shame
For our blighted harvests
For our towns aflame
He has sworn (he reeks not.
Who may cross his path)
That the foe shall feel him
In his torrid wrath,
That while will and spirit
Hold one spark of life
Blood shall stain his broad sword.
Blood shall wet his knife
On! ye Hessian horsemen Crush him - if you can
But "woe worth!" the staunchest slave
Who meets him man-to-man.
